

Good overall idea! Make sure users/requests can be efficiently routed across the network as needed, especially under high load or failure.